CLASSROOM QUESTIONS – APRIL ISSUE 2024

Reading Comprehension

1. Kid-ventors! tells the true stories of 35 kid inventors from around the world, including inventions for fun, inventions in technology, and more. Ask students if they have any ideas for something to create. If they could invent one thing, what would it be and what would they call it?

  2. In her column, teen author Olivia Amiri says that the setting is one of the most defining components of a story. Define and discuss “setting” with students. Ask them to write a few sentences about why they think the setting can be so important to a story.

  3. In Conrad’s Classroom, we learn many interesting facts about different types of woodpeckers, such as Pileated woodpeckers are expert excavators and prefer to eat carpenter ants, and acorn woodpeckers drill into trees where they can stash acorns. Ask kids to write three more fascinating facts about the woodpecker.

  4. T Is for Trails: A Hiking Alphabet takes the reader on an adventure through more than 20 hiking trails across the U.S. and Canada. Ask students if they’ve ever been hiking. If they have, ask them to write about their experience and where they would like to go next. If they haven’t been hiking, would they like to try it and where would they like to go?

  5. In the book I Am Gravity, each page describes something that gravity provides for our universe. Ask kids if they’re interested in science and how our world has been designed. Would they be interested in a career in science? Have them write some reasons for their answer.
